PHRASAL VERBS TO SEE

illustrations by BANEZKA

The verb "to see" has many different uses. However, we generally use this verb in reference to observing something. For example, "I saw Frank in the park." Now let's look at some phrasal verbs with the verb "to see".
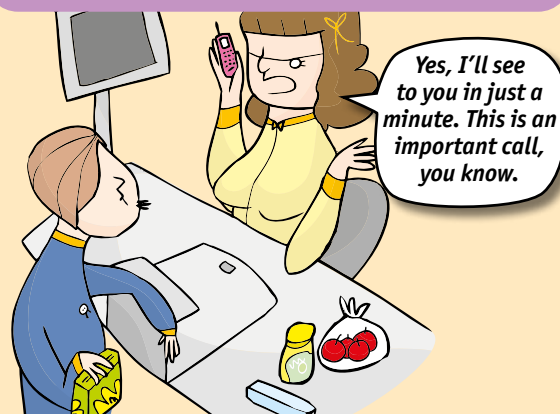

See to something
To deal with something; to find a solution to a problem.

I know your house is burning sir, but we're busy right now. We'll see to it just as soon as we can...

See to someone (in a shop, etc)
To deal with someone in a shop; to attend to someone in a shop.

Yes, I'll see to you in just a minute. This is an important call, you know.

See you through (money)
To have enough money to buy everything you need.

Here you are, son. $30 to see you through the month.

Dad, haven't you heard of inflation?

See through someone
To understand someone's true intentions.

No, Mr Wolf, we won't open the door. We can see through you.
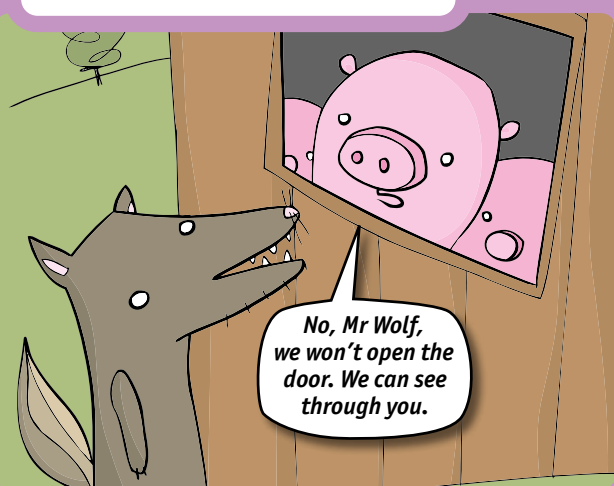

See someone off (before going on a journey)
To accompany someone to the airport/port/train station, in order to say goodbye to them.

That was nice of you to come and see my mother off.

I just wanted to make sure she really was going home.
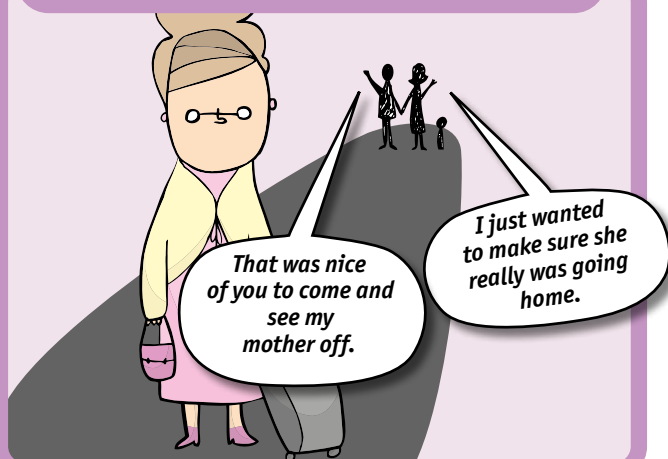

See someone out (of a room, etc)
To accompany someone as they leave a room, etc.

You aren't appropriately dressed for this museum. Let me see you out.
